The Complaints Process

For many, the thought of complaining can be daunting. This guide takes you through the process of making your complaint and where you can obtain further information.

To start with, who you contact to make a formal complaint will depend on:

- . Whether you are complaining about health care or social care, and
- . Whether that care is funded by the NHS or paid for privately.

Healthcare

If you are unhappy with the NHS publicly funded healthcare you have received e.g. from GPs, hospitals or community services you have the right to have your concerns heard.

Many health providers prefer people to notify them immediately of any concerns they may have so they can be dealt with as soon as possible. Should you not wish to do this, there is a formal complaints system that you can use for all NHS-funded services, which allows you to have your complaint formally investigated.

You can complain to either the Provider or the Commissioner of the health service you are unhappy about.

- . The provider is the organisation that provides the service to you, for instance a GP, dentist, pharmacist, optician or a hospital.
- . The commissioner (or purchaser) of Primary Care i.e. GPs, dentists, opticians, pharmacies and some specialised services is NHS England.

- . The commissioner of hospital services, mental health services, out of hours services and NHS 111 services amongst others are the Clinical Commissioning Groups.

Some complaints may be complex due to the fact that they involve several parts of the NHS, however whichever organisation your complaint starts with should manage it and pass it to other relevant service providers or commissioners with your permission.

Primary Care

Primary care services include your local GP, pharmacy and dental services, and high street optometrists. If you are making a complaint about one of these services, you have two routes to make your initial formal complaint:

- . Primary Care Provider - You can complain direct to the provider of the service e.g. the GP practice, pharmacy or optician. Ask your primary care service for their complaints procedure or check their website. Visit NHS Choices on www.nhs.uk for your providers contact details or web address or contact Healthwatch Worcestershire for more information.

OR

- NHS England (Commissioner) - This organisation is responsible for running the NHS and directly buying primary care services.

Recently the way in which GP services are commissioned has change. This means that GP services are now being commissioned by Clinical Commissioning Groups. However, NHS England are still currently responsible for dealing with GP complaints.

Hospital and Community Services

If you would like to make a complaint regarding a hospital or community service (including district nursing, health visiting), you should make a complaint to either the service provider or the Clinical Commissioning Group in the first instance.

- . Service provider - For most people, the first step in the complaints process will be to contact the organisation who provided the service e.g. the NHS hospital or community trust to make a complaint. The provider trusts in Worcestershire are Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust; Worcestershire Health and Care NHS Trust and West Midlands Ambulance Service NHS Trust.

OR

- . Clinical Commissioning Group - The local Clinical Commissioning Groups are responsible for planning and paying for all NHS funded hospital and community health services for its residents. There are 3 Clinical Commissioning Groups in Worcestershire - South Worcestershire, Wyre Forest and Redditch & Bromsgrove.

If you are making a complaint regarding hospital or community health services, you can make it directly to your Clinical Commissioning Group and they will work with the provider to investigate it.

The Ombudsman - The Next Stage

If you are not happy with the response you receive to your complaint you can go to the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman (PHSO), the independent organisation responsible for investigating complaints across the health system.

The PHSO will usually only investigate a complaint after the NHS has had a chance to try to resolve it so it is important you have already formally complained to the local provider or purchaser (Clinical Commissioning Group or NHS England) of the service.

The PHSO will not investigate all complaints but if it decides the NHS have got things wrong, it can make recommendations to put things right.
