Dear Colleague

Consultation on Evidence Based Interventions

Research evidence shows some interventions are not clinically effective or only effective when they are performed in specific circumstances. And as medical science advances, some interventions are superseded by those that are less invasive or more effective.

At both national and local levels, there is a general consensus that more needs to be done to ensure that the least effective interventions are not routinely performed, or only performed in more clearly defined circumstances.

We have formed a new national collaboration to turn this consensus into action.

We are launching today the Evidence Based Interventions Programme. We are publicly consulting on the design principles of the programme, the interventions we should target initially and proposed clinical criteria, the activity goals we should set and delivery actions, including proposed new terms in the NHS Standard Contract.

The full consultation document can be read here:

<https://www.engage.england.nhs.uk/consultation/evidence-based-interventions>

The proposals have been jointly developed by NHS England, NHS Clinical Commissioners, the Academy of Royal Medical Colleges, NICE and NHS Improvement in collaboration with the Royal Colleges and patient groups such as Healthwatch.

The proposals aim to reduce avoidable harm to patients, save precious professional time, help clinicians maintain their professional practice in line with the changing evidence base, create headroom for innovation and maximise value and avoid waste for patients and taxpayers.

The consultation will run from 4 July to 28 September 2018 and we would like to invite your views on the proposals. Following the close of the consultation, we will analyse and consider all responses received to inform our final approach, which will be announced later this financial year.
